CARNEGIE HALL HOSTS NEW RIVER CTC ART EXHIBIT THIS MONTH

[LEWISBURG, WV] The artwork of 11 students from New River Community and Technical College’s Greenbrier Valley Campus are on display in the Old Stone Room of Carnegie Hall in Lewisburg, WV, during the month of February.

Students participating in the exhibit include Craig Payne of Dawson; Casey Horton of Slaty Fork; Heather Logsdon of White Sulphur Springs; Dale McClung of Rainelle; Melissa Redden of Charmco; Julia Gordon of Lewisburg, Truman Shrewsbury of Frankford; Derek Marcus of Renick; Greta Davis of Lewisburg;
Mark Mason and Jenny McMillion of Lewisburg. A photograph by the late Belinda McClung of Rainelle was also selected for the exhibition.

Coordinating the exhibit is G. Nathan England, instructor of Fine Arts for New River Community and Technical College. He said that unlike past New River exhibits, which featured only digital photography, this one is titled “Assorted” because it includes works in several different media.

The exhibit is open Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. and Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. There will be a public reception on Friday, Feb. 12, from 5-7 p.m., with many of the student artists expected to be present.

New River is the only community and technical college in the state offering an associate of Fine Arts degree and, according to England, one of a select few in the nation.

For information on the Fine Arts and other programs of study at New River Community and Technical College Greenbrier Valley Campus, telephone 304-647-6560 or visit the campus offices at 101 Church Street in Lewisburg. Information about all New River programs can be found at www.newriver.edu.

-end-