NEW RIVER CTC OFFICES, LIBRARY OPEN DURING FALL BREAK

Students at New River Community and Technical College are observing fall break the week of Nov. 23-27, with classes to resume on Monday, Nov. 30.

However, offices on all campuses and at the central administration will be open Monday through Wednesday, giving area residents an opportunity to visit and explore the possibilities of attending New River during the Spring semester which begins Jan. 19.

Also open during the fall break will be the New River Community and Technical College Library which is located on the Greenbrier Valley Campus in Lewisburg. It will be open 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Wednesday, according to Robert Coston, librarian.

“While we are open to benefit all New River students who have research work to do before the end of the fall semester, we welcome also students from other colleges who are in the area for the break and have research work to complete,” Coston said, noting the New River Library is also open to the general public.

Greenbrier Valley Campus Dean Roger Griffith noted, “This break provides an opportunity for those students from our area at other colleges to take a look at New River, the courses of study we offer, and the classes we have scheduled for the Spring semester. They can also do a price comparison as New River has among the lowest tuition and fees of any state supported college or university.”

“We also welcome the area high school students who are off from the public and private schools and invite them to visit us during the break so we can help them make their college plans,” Griffin said.

New River campuses are located in Beckley, Beaver, Princeton, Summersville, and Lewisburg. Information on the courses of study and classes being offered are available at www.newriver.edu and at the offices on each of the campuses.
