

Question and Answers to NR#260718

1. The RFP indicates that the College currently offers a CDL program. Which company is the College currently using to provide these services?

ALS

2. Given that the College currently has a CDL program, why is the College going out for bid?

We do not have a full-time faculty/instructor.

3. Is the College seeking a for-credit or not-for-credit course?

We offer both.

4. In the submission instructions, the College specifies that an electronic version via flash/thumb drive would be preferred. Would the College accept an emailed version instead of one on a drive?

The college prefers flash/thumb drive but will accept an email version for this BID.

5. The RFP indicates that responses are limited to 50 pages. Does this count include the title page, TOC, required forms and/or any necessary exhibits, such as a sample curriculum?

We don't need curriculum versions. We follow J.J. Keller, and we have a program outline with course outcomes already established institutionally.

6. The College suggests that vendors be able to accommodate up to 35 students per trimester. Historically, how many students have completed the College's CDL program by year?

This number varies. I believe a safe number to use for the sake of this conversation would be 40-50.

7. As NRTC is providing equipment, is it safe to assume that all equipment-related expenses will be the responsibility of the College?

Yes.

8. Are skills testing currently conducted at the DMV, or does the College use a third-party testing provider?

We use a third-party examiner. The ATC is an official testing site; however, our current contractor has chosen to use the DMV as the testing site during his tenure.

9. Would the college consider training schedules different from the one currently outlined in the RFP, i.e. would the College be open to consider a four-week program?

Scheduling variations are negotiable for the non-credit program, although there is currently a prescribed schedule for our credit-bearing CDLT 101 course that we need to adhere to.

10. What are the student requirements/prerequisites for the $4135 tuition vs the $4824 tuition?

The $4135 tuition is under the accord that students already have their learner's permit and are ready to begin the full program. The $4824 tuition includes an extra week of training to prepare students to take the learner's test.
